Chapter I. Conditions for Authority of Penalties, Sphere of Application of Penal Law ? ¹⁾ et al.

Art. 1 A person shall not be subjected to penalties unless found guilty of behaviour deemed punishable by Law, or totally analogous to such conduct.

[Penalties can only be imposed in accordance with Chapter VII of the present Act if provided for in the conditions referred to in para. 1.] ¹⁾

Art. 2 If a criminal statute has been amended from the time an act is committed until Judgment is rendered, the Judgment shall be based on the new statute, both regarding the criminality of the act and the penalty imposed. A penalty may, however, never be imposed unless provided for by Law at the time of commission and cannot be ordered heavier than it would have been under that Law. If a criminal provision has been invalidated for reasons unrelated to a change in the legislator's assessment of the criminality of an act, the Judgment shall be based on the Law in force at the time of commission.

If an act ceases to be punishable for reasons other than those stated above, the penalty ordered as a result of the act shall be cancelled to the extent it has not already been enforced. Any other results of an act's criminality under the older Law shall also be cancelled, except an order to pay legal costs. In such a case the question whether the penalty ordered shall be cancelled, or reduced if the Judgment has also been rendered with respect to other offences, may be referred to the Court that rendered the Judgment at the District level, or a Court in the home venue of the offender. Appeal can be lodged against the conclusion of the District Court.

[Art. 2 a. Penalties provided for on account of offences according to Chapter VII of this Act cannot be ordered unless provided for in the conditions referred to in Art. 1 at the time of commission and the principles provided for in Art. 2 shall be observed when determining those penalties.] ¹⁾

Art. 4 Penalties shall be imposed in accordance with the Icelandic Penal Code on account of the following:-

1. Offences committed within the Icelandic State. If an offence is committed by a person employed on board, or a passenger of, a foreign ship or aircraft travelling here, against a person travelling with that craft or against interests closely linked to the craft, penalty shall, however, only be imposed if the Minister of Justice has ordered investigation and prosecution.
2. Offences committed on board Icelandic ships or Icelandic aircraft, irrespective of a craft's position at the time of commission. If an offence has been committed in a place subject to the criminal jurisdiction of another State under International Law, by a person neither permanently employed on board the craft nor a passenger thereon, penalty shall not be imposed in Iceland unless this is provided for in Articles 5 or 6.

[3. Offences against Art. 264 committed within the Icelandic State, even if the original offence from which the gain has been derived, was committed abroad and irrespective of who caused it] ¹⁾.

A person who has exceeded the limits of permitted self-defence as a result of having been so frightened or startled that he or she could not exercise full restraint, shall not be punished.

Art. 13 Any act necessarily performed for the purpose of protecting lawful interests against imminent danger shall not be punishable, even if abridgement has resulted to interests deemed to be of significantly less importance.

Art. 14 A person shall not be punished on account of an act committed before he or she attained the age of 15 years.

Art. 15 A person who was, at the time an act was committed, totally unable to control his/her actions on account of mental disease, retardation or deterioration, or on account of impaired consciousness or other similar condition, shall not be punished.

Art. 16 A mentally deranged person, such as on account of retardation, deterioration, sexual abnormality or other disturbance, without this condition being as serious as defined in Art. 15, shall be punished if punishment is, under the circumstances and after medical opinion has been sought, deemed likely to reap results.

If an institution for persons mentioned in this Article comes into being, a Criminal Judgment may provide that the offender may serve his/her [punishment] ¹⁾ there.

Art. 17 A penalty shall be ordered although an offence has been committed under the heavy influence of alcohol or other drugs. A penalty shall, however, not be ordered if the offender was completely unconscious, unless he or she knew in advance, or had full reason to expect, that the offence would be committed under such influence or that the offence would follow from this his/her condition.

Art. 18 A person shall only be made criminally responsible under this Act if his/her offence was intentionally or negligently committed. A penalty shall not be ordered on account of a negligently committed offence unless expressly provided for in the Act.

Art. 19 If the criminality of an act, or an increased penalty on account of an offence, is in this Act made subject to the condition that certain consequences result from its commission, that condition shall not be deemed fulfilled unless the consequences are at least ascribed to the defendant's negligence or deemed to have resulted from the defendant's failure to avert as far as possible the danger caused by the act, immediately when the defendant became aware of it.

[Chapter II A. Criminal Liability of Legal Persons.]¹⁾

[Art. 19 a. A legal person shall be ordered to pay a fine if this is provided for by Law.]¹⁾

[Art. 19 c. Subject to provisions in Law, a legal person can only be made criminally liable if its spokesman, employee or other person acting on its behalf has committed a criminal and unlawful act in the course of its business. Penalties shall be imposed even if the identity of this legal person has not been established. Administrative authorities can only be made criminally liable if a criminal and an unlawful act has been committed in the course of an operation deemed comparable to the operations of private entities.]¹⁾

Chapter III. Attempt and Participation.

Art. 20 Any person who has resolved to commit an act punishable under this Act and has clearly demonstrated this resolve by an act aimed at commission or designed as such is, if the offence has not been completed, guilty of an attempted offence.

For an attempted offence, a lower penalty may be ordered than for a completed offence. This shall, in particular, be done in cases where the attempt indicates that the offender is less dangerous and his/her resolution not as firm as that of persons who complete such offences.

If the attempt could not have led to a completion of the offence because of the interests threatened or the act itself, a penalty may be cancelled.

Art. 21 Penalty shall not be ordered on account of an attempted offence if the offender of his/her own accord abandons his/her intention to commit the offence before it has been completed, provided the commission of the offence has not been thwarted or an impediment or other fortuitous occurrence have prevented the offender's design from being achieved and the offender has, in addition, if he/she has by his/her act caused or expected a danger of completion, prevented its completion or taken measures that would have prevented it, if completion had not been thwarted for other reasons without his/her knowledge or proved impossible.

Art. 22 Any person who in word or deed provides aid in the commission of a punishable act defined in this Act, or takes, by persuasion, exhortation or otherwise a part in committing such act, shall be punished as provided for in the provision applying to the offence.

If the role of a participant in the commission of an offence is of minor nature, or if it involves the strengthening of another person's resolve already formed, if the offence has not been completed, or if the planned participation has failed, penalty may be ordered which is lower than that prescribed in the applicable provision.

In a situation defined in para. 2 and also when a person has become a participant in the commission of an offence by inadvertence penalty may be cancelled if the act comes under a penal provision providing for a penalty not heavier than [up to 1 year's imprisonment.]¹⁾

If an offence has been completed, a person who aids the offender himself/herself or any other person in maintaining an unlawful situation created by the offence, or enjoys any profits created thereby shall be punished in accordance with the provisions of this Article subject to any other statutory provisions which may apply to his/her act.

Art. 23 An accessory shall not be subjected to penalties if he or she does in the manner stated in Art. 21 avert the offence or takes measures that would have prevented the offence if its commission had not been thwarted for other reasons without the accessory's knowledge, failed or proved impossible.

Chapter IV. Rules of Indictment.

Art. 24 Every punishable act shall be subject to official indictment, unless otherwise expressly provided for by Law.

Art. 25 If official prosecution authorities do not initiate litigation on account of an offence, or if such authorities shall only prosecute if a claim is made to that effect, only the victim may initiate litigation or make the claim.

If a victim is a minor, his/her legal guardian according to Law shall take the victim's place. If deemed necessary, a special guardian may be appointed for this purpose.

If a victim is deceased or if an act committed against a deceased person is punishable, the husband or wife of the deceased, his or her parents, children, adopted children, [grandchildren] ¹⁾ and siblings are entitled to initiate litigation or request official prosecution.

Art. 26 In case an act is only punishable if the victim requests official prosecution, official investigation shall not be commenced until the claim has been submitted.

If an act has been committed against more than one person a claim submitted by one of the victims shall suffice and if litigation is not to be initiated by a public authority each victim may initiate civil litigation.

If two or more persons are entitled, under para. 2 or 3 of Art. 25, to make a claim for official prosecution, but the persons concerned do not agree on whether to make such claim, the official prosecution authority shall decide whether to prosecute.

Art. 27 A claim for official prosecution shall not be granted if any person who may be jointly responsible for the act is exempted, except if the official prosecution authority may grant its approval. If it appears, after a claim has been submitted that more persons are guilty than has previously been known, the person making the claim shall be asked whether punishment of those persons is also claimed.

Art. 28 If punishment shall only be ordered upon a claim for punishment made in private litigation, criminal liability shall be dropped if the victim abandons his or her right to prosecute or abandons a commenced prosecution, or otherwise relinquishes this right prior to Judgment of the Case being decided before a District Court.

A person who has revoked a claim for prosecution cannot later make that claim, unless approved by the official prosecution authority.

Art. 29 The right to request official prosecution or to initiate civil litigation shall be dropped if the claim is not made or the litigation initiated before 6 months have passed from the time the person possessing authority obtained knowledge of the offender. If a victim has died before the expiry of this period a person succeeding the victim can always make a request for prosecution or initiate civil litigation during the three months following the victim's death, although the period would else have expired by then. If the offenders are more than one and the respite to claim official prosecution against any one of them has expired, a claim for official prosecution against the others shall be subject to approval by the prosecution authority.

If civil litigation has not resulted in adjudication of a claim for punishment, a new litigation may be initiated until the period of six months has expired. A request for official prosecution may also be made or civil litigation initiated during the three months following cancellation of a Case.

A declaration shall be obtained from the prisoner to the effect that he/she is willing to obey the conditions laid down for release on probation.

A prisoner released on probation shall be handed a certificate stating the conditions laid down for the release and the consequences of failure to meet the conditions.

Art. 41 [The period of release on probation shall be up to 3 years. If the term of imprisonment to be served is longer than 3 years the period may be determined for up to 5 years.

The condition may furthermore be laid down that the prisoner be subject to supervision and control by the Prison and Probation Administration or another party as the Administration may decide, during a part of the period of release or the entire period. Release on probation may also be made subject to some or all of the conditions provided for in para. 3 of Art. 57. Art. 42 [If a person commits a new offence after release on probation and a criminal investigation is commenced by the police against that person as a suspect before the probation period has expired, the Court dealing with the Case shall impose a penalty for that offence jointly with regard to the sentence not served, in accordance with the provisions of Art. 60, assessing a sentence of imprisonment under the old Judgment in the same manner as a conditional sentence.

If a person in other respects fails to meet the conditions laid down the Prison and Probation Administration may decide whether to change the conditions and to extend a period of probation and/or supervision up to its lawful maximum, or decide that the party serve the period remaining of his/her sentence.

If a decision is not made to have a party serve a period remaining of his/her sentence, cf. para. 1 and 2, the sentence shall be deemed served in full at the point of time when the person was granted release on probation.

If a decision is made to have a party serve a period remaining of his/her sentence, cf. para. 2, a period of release on probation may be granted anew even if the conditions laid down in para. 1 and 2 of Art. 40 are not fulfilled. In this instance the provisions of Art. 41 governing the length of the period of release on probation shall apply with a reduction by the period of release on probation previously enjoyed.

Art. 56 [When a person has confessed an offence, [a Prosecutor] ¹⁾ may suspend, for a specified period, the issue of an indictment on account of that offence, as follows:-

1. On account of offences committed by young persons of the age of 15 - 21 years.
2. When the situation of the offender is such that supervision or other measures under para. 3, Art. 57, may be considered more likely to have more durable result than a penalty, provided the offence is not such as to necessitate prosecution with a view to public interest.

The period of conditional suspension may not be shorter than 1 year and no longer than 5 years. Generally this period shall be laid down as 2 - 3 years. [The Prosecutor] ¹⁾ shall, in each case, specify the point in time at which the period of suspension commences. When indictment is suspended, the conditions provided for in para. 3, Art. 57, may be laid down as deemed suitable. The conditions may be altered during the period of suspension, including by an extension of the period, however no longer than a total of 5 years.

The conditional period may not be shorter than 1 year and no longer than 5 years. The period generally determined shall be 2 - 3 years. The time at which the period commences shall be laid down by Judgment on each occasion.

Suspension shall be made subject to the condition that the party does not commit a new offence during the period of the suspension, cf. Art. 60. Suspension may also be made subject to the following conditions:-

1. That the person be subject to the supervision of individual persons, an association or institution. A person shall generally be subject to such supervision if conditions are laid down for him/her in accordance with the provisions of clauses 2 - 5 below.
2. That the person obeys the instructions of the supervisor concerning place of stay, education, employment, interrelation with other persons and use of leisure hours.
3. That the person does not during the conditional period use alcohol or narcotics.

Chapter VII. On Security Measures, Deprivation of Civil Rights and Confiscation of Assets

Art. 62 If a person is acquitted under the provisions of Art. 15 or a Court finds, in accordance with the provisions of Art. 16, that a penalty would not reap result, a Judgment may, if necessary with a view to judicial security, provide for measures to be taken in order to prevent danger ensuing from the person in question. If it may be assumed that more moderate measures, such as bail, prohibition against stay in particular places, or deprivation of legal rights will not be successful, it may be ordered that the person be committed to a suitable institution. The Supreme Court shall then appoint for the person a supervisor who shall control that his/her stay at the institution will not be longer than necessary. The Minister of Justice may when necessary seek the determination of the District Court where the institution is located and after medical opinion has been obtained as to whether the measures in question shall still be deemed necessary. The supervisor may likewise make such a request when a year has passed as of the Judgment or the District Court's last decision or at an earlier stage, if the Minister of Justice approves a new submission of the Case to the Court referred to above. The decision of the District Court may be subject to summary appeal as provided for in criminal Cases.

Art. 63 If a person's condition as defined in Articles 15 or 16 has become chronic after the commission of a punishable act, but before a final Judgment is rendered in his/her Case, the Court shall decide whether a penalty shall be ordered or cancelled. If the conditions referred to in Art. 62 are deemed to apply, the Judgment may provide that the measures referred to therein shall be applied instead of a penalty or until enforcement of the penalty is considered possible.

Art. 65 [If deemed apparent with a view to the circumstances of a case and after medical opinion has been obtained that an offender who has committed an offence under the influence of alcohol cannot control his/her craving, Judgment may provide for his/her commitment for cure to a suitable institution.] ¹⁾ Judgment shall then provide for a stay at the institution for up to 18 months, or up to 3 years in repeated cases. The Minister of Justice decides, having obtained the recommendations of the management of the institution and the doctor in question, whether the person may be released from the institution before the aforementioned maximum period has expired, on the assumption that he/she has been cured.

Art. 66 If a person intimidates another person or threatens him/her with death, arson or other harm and a penalty can either not be imposed or is not deemed to provide adequate security, the prosecution authorities can, upon the request of the party concerned, or without such a request if deemed necessary with a view to judicial security, take the initiative to have a Court Order issued on measures to prevent the threat from being carried out, including bail by the person making the threat, or the placing of that person in custody. A Court may cancel the measures if these are no longer deemed needed in view of changed circumstances.

If the prosecution authority so requests, the matter may always be referred to a Court decision anew. The person against whom a Court Order is directed can, when 6 months have passed since a Judgment or the latest Court decision was rendered or at an earlier date with the approval of the prosecution authority, request that the matter be officially referred to a Court anew.

Court decisions rendered in accordance with this Article may be subject to summary appeal as provided for in criminal Cases.

Art. 67 If a person has been sentenced to [imprisonment] ¹⁾ and it is deemed highly likely with a view to the nature of his/her offence, his/her mental condition and his/her previous conduct, that he/she will commit an offence as a habitual offender or for professional purposes and consequently poses a danger to his/her environment, the Judgment sentencing him/her, or a later Judgment rendered upon request of the prosecution authorities, may provide that security measures as provided for in Art. 66 shall be applied when sentence has been served. Such measures may be discontinued as provided for in Art. 66.

Art. 68 [In case a civil servant commits an offence he/she may, in a criminal litigation against him/her, be deprived of authority to exercise his/her public functions if he/she is no longer deemed worthy or suited.

A person convicted of an offence may, in criminal litigation against him/her, be deprived of authority he/she has acquired to pursue an occupation for which an official licence, authorization, appointment or examination is required, provided the offence indicates that there is considerable danger that the guilty person will commit an offence in his/her position or occupation. In case of a grave offence a person can also be deprived of the aforementioned right if he/she is no longer considered worthy of pursuing the occupation or enjoying the rights.

A person may be deprived of the rights referred to in para. 2 for a specified period of up to five years or for life.

Special provisions in Law providing for deprivation of rights referred to in para. 1 and 2 shall remain in effect.

Deprivation of rights is counted as of the point in time provided for in a Judgment and, at the latest as of the time Judgment is served.

In case an Icelandic citizen or a person resident in this Country is deprived of rights abroad by a Judgment rendered on account of a punishable act, the prosecution authorities may initiate criminal litigation against him/her for deprivation of rights. The same applies if a person has been sentenced abroad, even if deprivation of rights has not been ordered. Decision on the above deprivation of rights is subject to Icelandic Law.] ¹⁾

[Art. 68 a. In case a person is denied a public office or an official occupational licence as he or she has committed a punishable act, the administrative rejection may be referred to the Courts in accordance with the rules of criminal procedure. The resolution of the District Court shall be subject to summary appeal to the Supreme Court. Special provisions in Law providing for cancellation of such deprivation shall remain in effect.] ¹⁾

Art. 69 Confiscation by Judgment is allowed in respect of:-

1. Objects originating from an offence or used for its commission, except if these be in the ownership of a person not implicated in the offence in any manner.
2. Objects which may be assumed to be intended for a criminal purpose, provided this is deemed necessary having regard for judicial security.
3. Objects or proceeds acquired by a criminal offence to which no party has a lawful claim or a monetary amount corresponding to such proceeds [or objects purchased for such gain. If full proof of the value of the proceeds cannot be adduced, the Judge may assess the amount thereof.] ¹⁾

Subject to statute provisions providing for a different arrangement, the confiscated property shall accrue to the State Treasury. If anyone has suffered loss by reason of the offence he/she shall, however, have priority to the value if compensation cannot be obtained by other means.

If an association is dissolved by Judgment its assets shall be confiscated to the State Treasury and public authorities shall then take its books and records for safekeeping.

Chapter VIII. Factors Influencing Determination of Penalty

Art. 70 When imposing a penalty the following factors shall in particular be taken into account:-

1. The importance of the interests affected by the offence.
2. The extent of damage caused by the offence.
3. The danger ensuing from the commission of the offence, in particular when considering the time, place and method of commission.
4. The age of the offender.
5. The recent behaviour of the offender.
6. The strength and degree of the offender's resolve.
7. The motive of the offender.
8. The offender's conduct following upon the commission of the offence.
- [9. Whether the offender has provided information on the involvement of other parties to the offence.] ¹⁾

If an offence has been committed by more than one person acting together, this shall generally be viewed as an aggravating factor of penalty.

Art. 71 When the Law provides for or authorizes an increased penalty or alternative sanctions in case of a repeated offence, such provisions shall not be applied unless the offender has, prior to the commission of the latter offence, been found guilty in this Country, or sentenced on account of an offence having repetitive effects concerning that offence or on account of an attempt to commit such offence or as an accomplice in the commission of such offence and if the offender had, in addition, attained the age of 18 years when the former offence was committed.

The Courts may decide that criminal sentences pronounced abroad shall have repetitive effects as if these had been pronounced in this Country.

Repetitive effects shall lapse if 5 years have passed as of the enforcement of the former sentence, or from the time when the former sentence was cancelled or its enforcement abandoned, until the later offence was committed. If the former sentence imposed fines the period shall, however, be counted as of the date when a final Judgment was rendered or the payment of a fine was accepted.

Art. 72 If a person commits one or more offences habitually or professionally the penalty ordered may be increased by an addition of up to one half thereof. If this is repeated the penalty ordered may be doubled.

Art. 73 If a prisoner who is serving a sentence or is kept in custody for other reasons is found guilty of an offence against Articles 106, ?,¹⁾ 126, 127, 164, 211, 217, 218, 225, 226, 233 or para 2. Art. 257, the penalty ordered may exceed the limits provided for in these provisions, however not beyond double the penalty provided for therein. In such cases a penalty lower than [imprisonment]²⁾ shall not be ordered. ?]²⁾

The provisions of the first sentence of the immediate preceding paragraph may also be applied if a person who has served a prison sentence has committed an offence referred to therein against the officers or personnel of the penal institution where he/she served his/her sentence or an offence against the institution and its property and also if a person who has served a prison sentence commits a violation of the provisions of Art. 111 in relation to prisoners serving a sentence in the penal institution where his/her sentence was served.

If a person who has been sentenced to prison for life and has not been pardoned commits a new offence in the prison or outside the prison, the Judgment in his/her Case shall decide the penalty that would have been ordered if the former penalty had not been imprisonment for life. Sanctions under Art. 47 can also be ordered in such a case and the period under para. 3 of that Article may be doubled.

Art. 74 The penalty provided for by Law in consequence of an offence may be reduced below the minimum provided for therein, in the following circumstances:-

1. When a person has exceeded the limits of permissible self-defence or defence of other lawful interests.
2. When an offence has been committed by a person then under 18 years of age, if full penalty is deemed unnecessary or harmful with a view to the offender's youth. The penalty ordered in Cases of persons who have not attained this age may never exceed 8 years in prison.
3. When the offender, by reason of excusable ignorance or misunderstanding of the Law prohibiting an act, believed his/her act not to constitute an offence.
4. When a person has committed an offence in a mental state of great anger or mental agitation evoked by the victim by unlawful assault or grave insult.
5. If a person relents to the commission of an offence as a result of dependence upon another person.
6. If a person has committed an offence as a consequence of duress which is not of such a nature as to make his/her act not punishable in any respect.
7. If the offender has on his/her own accord, after the completion of his/her offence, averted the danger resulting therefrom.
8. If the offender has of his/her own accord made full compensation for the damage caused by the act and also when the offender has, on his/her own accord, endeavoured to prevent the harmful effects of the offence or to make compensation for it as far as possible.
9. If a person informs of his/her offence on his/her own accord and freely provides an account of all the relevant facts.

In cases referred to in para. 1 - 8 above it may be decided that penalty can be cancelled in full.

Art. 75 If a person has committed an offence in a state of high mental agitation, by reason of other brief mental imbalance or if his/her offence is not deemed nearly as punishable as usual for similar offences, the penalty may be reduced and even cancelled if the penalty on account of that offence does not exceed [1 year in prison].¹⁾ If the offender's condition is of his/her own making as a result of the use of alcohol the above provisions shall only be taken into consideration in cases of mitigating circumstances and if the offender has not been previously found guilty of the same or similar offence or of a violation of para. 1 or 2 of Art. 123.

Art. 76 If an offender has been remanded in custody for a reason not pertaining to his/her conduct during the proceedings or the investigation of his/her Case, the Judgment shall provide that his/her custody shall replace the penalty in part or in full.

Art. 77 If it is discovered while a particular criminal Case is in progress that the suspect has committed more than one offence, the penalty on account thereof shall be imposed jointly, taking into account all offences, but if the penalty on account of the most serious offence is imprisonment for life, no further penalty shall be imposed on account of the other offences.

The penalty shall generally be ordered within the limits of the penal provision applying to the offences in question and if the offences do not come under the same penal provision the penalty ordered shall be within the limits of the penal provision applying to the most serious offence. The penalty may, however, be increased by an addition of up to one half thereof according to the facts of the Case. Nevertheless the Courts may, when a person is sentenced simultaneously on account of a grave offence and an insignificant offence by comparison, apply even the lowest penalty provided for on account of the graver offence.
